

I am a flight attendant and the use of cell phones on the ground is out of hand now. During the safety demo I still have passengers on the phone sneaking to get the last call in and landing they start to use them when they know better. In emergency they would be on the phone and not listening to crew instructions. Besides the safety reasons do you want to sit in a middle seat listening to two other people on the phone while you try to sleep or read? When it comes to cell phones people do not have manners.
